Creative Photography

Guest Speaker Wayne Boardman

Come and listen to Wayne who will share ideas on how we can improve our images by thinking outside the square and adding that extra element of creativity to our photographs.

The following is one definition of creative photography:

"Creative photography contains an extra element(or elements) that are intentionally used to improve a photo from its original state"

Wayne will also take us through a selection of his portfolio of failures and discuss with us the reason he considers them a failure and what he would do to improve the image.

About Wayne

I'm from the UK and spent many years serving in the British Army travelling the world and moved to NZ in 2012 with my family. Photographically I enjoy most subjects but for me Land and Seascapes as well as city and architectural photography is where I find most enjoyment. I now shoot on the Fujifilm GFX system and appreciate the image quality that the large sensor gives me in terms of dynamic range it fits perfect for the genres of photograph that I shoot.
